- no booster vaccination may be administered more than 7 days prior to arrival at the competition.

VII. CODE OF CONDUCT FOR HORSES

I. At all stages of a horse's training and preparation for competition, the welfare of the horse must stand above all other requirements. This includes constant care, training methods, careful grooming, farriery and transport.

II. Horses and riders must be healthy, competent and trained before they compete. This includes the use of medications, medical supplies, and surgical procedures that threaten the welfare of the horse or the mare's pregnancy, and cases of abuse of medical assistance.

III. Participation in the competition must not jeopardize the welfare of the horse. Special attention must be paid to the competition area, the technical condition of the ground, the stable and weather conditions, the condition of the horses and their safety, also during the return journey from the competition.

IV. Every effort should be made to ensure that horses are carefully cared for after the competition, and that they are treated humanely at the end of their sporting career. This includes proper veterinary care, treatment for injuries sustained in competition, peaceful aging, and possibly euthanasia.

V. Polish Equestrian Federation strongly encourages all persons involved in equestrian activities to continuously improve their knowledge and skills in all aspects of working with a horse.
